Making Good an Old Boast.

A process has been discovered whereby old leather can be converted into gelatin. Such transformation offers a ready way of utilizing many articles after their value to every one but the junk man appears to be gone. Since head coverings are sometimes made of leather, it would appear that at least the man confident that his candidate will win in an election may literally back up his confidence with the time-honored promise that he will eat his hat in the event that his man loses.

HELP INVALIDS TO FORGET

Presence of a Canary or Goldfish in the Sickroom Invariably Has Beneficial Effect.

Next time you sit in a room, the furnishings of which include a bowl of goldfish, consider how much time you spend watching the small fish as they swim slowly about or dart about in pursuit of each other.

Probably you will conclude you were indulging the usual tendency of the normal person to be attracted to moving objects. In sick persons and convalescents this tendency is more pronounced, and in the aged and very young it is still more so.

That psychology of this attraction was given by Dr. Edward N. Leavy, formerly veterinarian to the animals in Central park zoo. He is now connected with a Fifth avenue pet store. "Sick persons lying in bed spend a great deal of time watching the goldfish if an aquarium is in their room," he said. "It takes their minds off their pains and aches and is very beneficial."

Cannaries share with goldfish the honor of being the chief animate entertainment to the sick.—New York Sun.

One isn't troubled much by the laws against violence if he isn't troublesome.

You are entitled to the benefit of the doubt. Why not take advantage of it?

The law is very careful in protecting the rights of a prisoner charged with a crime.

How about the Law of Common Sense and the man who has committed an error only? Isn't this a good place to use the benefit of the doubt, too?

Take your own case: If you don't know for sure whether tea or coffee is harming you, you do know that many are harmed by the drug element in tea and coffee, and that headaches, nervousness, or high blood pressure are symptoms which often tell that the drug, caffeine, is giving the nervous system too much jolt.

Probably you know, too, that some people can't drink a cup of tea or coffee at bed-time, and sleep well that night.

Where many have been harmed by tea and coffee, and you may be harmed, isn't it well to put the benefit of the doubt on your side before doubt becomes an unpleasant certainty?

EXIT WINTER MILLINERY; SIMPLE STYLE IN BLOUSES

It is only the aristocrats among hats that survive the length of the season to find themselves admired and salable at its close—when all their lovely companions are faded and gone. These hats have excellences that give them a lasting appeal; in beauty and becomingness of lines, in unusual or ingenious drapery or in flattering color combinations. Nevertheless they must soon make way for hats of another character—those between-seasons affairs of silk, satin and other fabrics that fill in the gap between late winter and spring, so that milliners are willing to part with fine winter hats at a sacrifice.

Three examples of the survival of the fittest in winter millinery are stage in great force. In the meantime blouses that are to do service between now and spring are selling freely and the taste of the public, tested by its demands, is shown to run to simple styles and staple fabrics. The stamp of approval has been set on crepe de chine, in which the suit colors are liked best. Navy blue and henna have the greatest number of admirers and, with the exception of tan and bisque, light colors are neglected for the time being. For trimmings head embroidery is preferred, but narrow ribbons and simple stitching answer the purpose of trimming admirably on these unpretentious blouses.

shown above, with one small, plain companion of felt that will face snow or sun with equal success. The large hat at the top of the group, has a crown of rich broadened silk and an eccentric brim, beautifully draped with velvet. This combination is never out of date in winter hats and makes opportunity for many lovely color combinations. There is plenty of time for its cheerful display between now and Easter. Large hats are in the minority, but one of the dependable styles among them appears at the left of the group. This is a velvet hat also, with a narrow band of kimmer between the top and side crown. A very large and handsome hand-made flower of velvet and satin is posed at the right side.

The small, chic turban that finishes the group has everything to recommend it to those who appreciate its fine points. It is made of black velvet studded with nailhead ornaments and its lines are those of the beautiful oriental turban. It is not worth while to undertake to improve on them or upon the pose of the feather which springs up at the front. This hat will please smartly dressed matrons.

Other noteworthy hats that hold a brief for winter show metal brocades, velvet and fur in rich combinations, all in small or medium sizes.

Behind the scenes, waiting their cue to enter, are the blouses of spring. They will soon occupy fashion's smock are sure to be selected when simplicity is the keynote of the mode and in materials, beside crepe de chine, tricolette and georgette are given considerable attention. The two blouses which have been selected for illustration, are representative of those shown in the stores for present wear. One of them, cut in kimono style, is made of navy blue crepe de chine and contents itself with such naive decoration as navy satin ribbon, having a bright green edge, and a tiny silk braid that outlines the neck. Its girdle is made of the crepe de chine and set loosely below the waistline. Girdles on blouses are inconspicuous.

The companion blouse, of henna crepe, employs black and white beads for trimming in a design that is modest but distinctive. It has set-in sleeves. The crepe de chine blouse

Lingerie waists of batiste and voile are among the staple things that change little in style and they may be made up now for next spring and summer.

The Poet's business.

The duty of the poet is like unto that of the naturalist; it is to pursue and capture those rare specimens of thought that have hitherto escaped the hunter's net; incise in crystal-clear diction these captive beauties of nature; and offer them, 'mid the wild-flowers of their native haunts, for the admiration, reverence and love of all mankind.

Honest Paris.

A black satchel containing $55,000 in cash was found on the seat of a Paris omnibus one morning recently, writes a correspondent. It had been forgotten by a bank messenger, who was greatly relieved to find that the conductor of the omnibus had duly delivered it to the lost property office, where it lay among umbrellas and odd gloves awaiting reclamation.

GIRL HAD PAINFUL TIMES

Mothers—Read This Letter and Statement Which Follows

Portland, Indiana.—"I was troubled with irregularity and constipation and would often have to lie down because of pains. One Sunday my aunt was visiting us and she said her girls took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and got well, so mother said she guessed she would let me try it. It is doing me good and I praise it highly. You are welcome to use this letter as a testimonial."—STELLA NEWTON, R. R. 8, Portland, Indiana.

Mothers—You should carefully guard your daughter's health. Advise her of the danger which comes from standing around with cold or wet feet, from lifting heavy articles, or overworking. Do not let her overstudy.

If she complains of headache, pains in back or lower limbs, or if you notice a slowness of thought, nervousness or irritability on the part of your daughter, give her careful attention.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is an excellent medicine for your daughter to take, as it is especially adapted to relieve just such symptoms. Remember it contains nothing that can injure and can be taken in safety.

There's no use in running if you're not on the right road.
